

Binary Colloidal Alloy Test (BCAT)

On Earth, gravity causes the colloid particles to settle. This settling prevents the formation of large scale crystallites and obscures the observation of the more finely controlled behavior.

An increased understanding of the behavior of colloids will help scientists understand better how to make them more useful for technology.